

ECONOMISTS AVER QUEBEC GOVERNMENT AUTOCRATIC; APPROVE C.I.O. UNIONIZATION

HEAR BALLANTYNE
ANG President Outlines Problems of Organizing Editorial Writers
ATTACKS GOVERNMENT
Rennie, Wykes Trace Growth of Industrial Unions—Condemn Anti-Labor Legislation

THE action of Attorney-General Duplessis in declaring the C.I.O. an undemocratic organization is a manifestation of autocracy in Quebec," Neville Wykes declared last night at a meeting of the Political Economy Club to consider industrial unionization. This charge was further aired by R. A. C. Ballantyne, president of the local American Newspaper Guild, who was dismissed from a local morning newspaper this summer for his C.I.O. affiliations.

Ballantyne, who was present at the meeting through invitation, declared himself unable to obtain action from the Attorney-General in this case because of the latter's assertion that the ANG "is not a bona fide union." Ballantyne pointed out that, last Saturday, another C.I.O. organization was recognized by the Government. This, declared Ballantyne, was evidence that the reason for denying recognition to the ANG was the fact that his former employer is the publisher of a newspaper favorable to the present Quebec administration.

C.I.O. IN CANADA.
 In his speech, Neville Wykes spoke of the gains made by labour in Canada during the past year in Nova Scotia and Manitoba, but lamented its slowness in Quebec. Wykes' opinion was that the C.I.O. is definitely not Communist, a charge levelled against it by many, since its president, John L. Lewis, has shown his dislike of Communism on many occasions.

He also declared that it was very unlikely that Lewis would run in the next presidential elections, since the capitalist press would accuse him of treachery to the C.I.O., nor that he would try to form a third party by merging industry and farming since these have little in common. He concluded by suggesting that the C.I.O. organize a national industrial newspaper; "this movement has a great future if it plays its cards wisely," were his closing words.

Don Rennie, the other speaker, gave a short history of the C.I.O., which was organized on November 5, 1935. It was formed to take the place of the American Federation of Labour which had failed. He told how Lewis resigned his position as vice-president of this body to guide the destinies of the newly-formed C.I.O. In the steel industry, strikes were called, but in some, such as the Little Steel, they were only successful in so far as to gain better wages and hours, but not the right to organize. He finished by saying that automotive and rubber industries came to Lewis, whereas in steel he had to go to them and finally declare strikes.

COMMISSION TRIES TO IMPROVE ARTS COURSES BY QUIZ

Student Opinion Gathered by Arts Curriculum Commission

QUESTIONS PLANNED
Today's Discussion Centres On Improvements of Courses

FEELING that a questionnaire is the most effective means of discovering campus opinion, the Arts Curriculum Commission meets today at 5 o'clock in room 13 of the Arts Building to draw up a set of questions on the Arts and Science courses.

This meeting will be open to any student who has spent any time in the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, no matter what course he or she is following at present. The Commission will base its list of about 10 questions on the ideas of students at the meeting, and will be on any phase of courses in the faculty.

In general, opinions are invited on the question of "student advisers," as the Commission feels that there is room for improvement in the present system, said Frieda Bindman, Chairman, last night. "It is not that the system in force was not well thought out by the Faculty," she said, "but that the suggestions of students in this regard might be worthy of consideration." If there is anything lacking in the courses of the faculty, or if there is any way by which the students may be enabled to get more out of college life by changes in the curriculum, it may be discovered by means of questionnaire to be issued next Monday.

"For this reason," Frieda Bindman said, "the better the attendance at today's meeting and the greater the number of questionnaires answered, the more likely will be the combined opinion of the students have a better chance of receiving the approval of the Faculty members."

Engineers, doctors, lawyers, and in fact anyone who has taken any part of the Arts and Sciences courses, as well as Arts and Science students, are invited to express their opinions in this short questionnaire.

HISTORICAL GROUP DISCUSS EDUCATION

Whitely and Evans Address Meeting of R.V.C. Co-Eds.

Pioneer Teachers, Strachan, and Bishop Laval Spoken Of During Discussion

"EDUCATION IN QUEBEC" and "Education from the Standpoint of Strachan and Ryerson" were the topics discussed at the second meeting of the R.V.C. Historical Club held last night.

The first speaker, Frances Whitely, dealt with the struggle of the pioneer teachers of the province, French and English, Catholic and Protestant, and stressed the fact that early French education was based chiefly by religious orders. Bishop Laval was especially mentioned as contributing much in time and money. A lively discussion followed on present-day conditions.

In dealing with Education, Phyllis Evans said "the bulk of Ryerson's work for education is to be found in the public schools. For him, education was a pyramid and he was preoccupied more with the base than the apex."

BERLIN'S OLYMPIC SCENES DISPLAYED FOR GERMAN CLUB

Club Members Begin Meeting With Singing of Popular Folk Songs

CONVERSATION GERMAN

Mr. Muller-Hinkler Presents Films and Gives Audience Explanatory Comments

MOVING picture scenes of snow sports in Switzerland and contests of the 1936 Olympic Games in Germany formed the main feature of the meeting held by the German Club in the Union Grill last night.

The meeting was begun with several popular German songs, sung by the entire audience and accompanied by Frieda Bindman at the piano. Helen Hilborn, president of the club, then introduced Mr. Muller-Hinkler, who presented the films and commented on them. The first two of these films showed some snow and ice views of Switzerland and exhibitions in skating and skiing. These were followed by scenes of running, pistol-shooting, and other contests of the Olympic games. The last film showed the climax of the games, the ceremony of lowering the Olympic flag and extinguishing the Olympic torch.

All the conversation carried on during the meeting as well as during the refreshments that followed the films was entirely in German. The president announced that the meeting of the club would be held on December 2.

FRANZ BOAS TO ADDRESS JOINT MEETING TODAY

'Racial Problems' Will Be Main Topic

IMMIGRATION STUDIED

Nations Held Not Largest Social Unit

DR. FRANZ BOAS, eminent anthropologist of 53 years standing will speak on "Racial Problems" at 1:15 p.m. today in Room 250 of the Biological Building. The meeting is sponsored by the Social Problems Club and the Biological and Sociological Societies.

Dr. Boas has explored almost every field relative to his work, including ethnology, folklore, and linguistics. After forty years on the staff of Columbia University, where he was affectionately called "Papa Franz," he retired in 1936. He has made an extensive study of immigration, and has concluded that the population undergoes minute changes in new environments. Already the descendants of American immigrants have begun to show completely new motor habits, for example, in postures and gesticulation. This is especially noticeable in those who move out of the family orbit.

PROMINENT AUTHOR.

Of great interest in view of the present conditions in Germany is the fact that Boas published in 1911 a work called "Mind of Primitive Races," which has been named "A Magna Charta of Self-respect for the Lower Races" and which attacks the theory of race purity. Dr. Boas is himself a German Jew.

Dr. Boas has made some research on war. He puts forward the suggestion that in primitive times man thought it an act of merit to kill any other stranger hordes. This idea of hate for the stranger has descended to us in our hate for other nation groups, but eventually we will realize that even nations are not the largest social units in the world.

The anthropologist, who has already addressed McGill, will speak again tonight at 8:30 o'clock before the University of Montreal on "Social Life of the British Columbian Indian."

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB.

Executive meeting at 5:30 p.m. today in the Pit. Betty Kobayashi, Faustino Sotto, Ainsworth Scott, Juan Julian, David Lim Yuen, Harriet Bloomfield.

International Red Cross Asks For Aid In Assisting Chinese

Sacrifices Must Be Made to Uphold Peace and Justice—Sino-Japanese Crisis Brings Horrors of Warfare to Non-Aggressive Nation

By M. N. F.

LET your imagination run riot for a few moments and attempt, if you can, to conjure up in your mind the state of existence which the average student, like yourself, is at present leading in China. As he appears in the street, his gaiety seems to lack the confidence, the enthusiasm, of a student; he sneaks from doorway to doorway, hoping to reach his destination in safety and, deep in his heart, doubting if he will ever return alive. Why does he not walk boldly and courageously?

You students who live in peace and safety, far from war and the weapons of war, you cannot understand or appreciate his emotions. For, have you ever heard the droning roar of airplanes overhead, vomiting their load of death and destruction on all sides around you; seen the earth torn up; and heard the shrieks of humans torn limb from limb and thrown to the winds? Have you ever seen grief-stricken, half-crazed mothers dig frantically in the scattered debris of ruined homes for the mangled, crushed bodies of the little loved ones? Have you ever walked in the street arm in arm with a friend, heard a muffled noise overhead, looked up, and suddenly found yourself alone—with a corpse? No, you walk about the open in confidence and safety and yet, in China, thousands

PLAYERS CLUB PRESENTS 'THE SHINING HOUR'

Lead to Be Taken by Stephen Macnutt

EXPERIENCED CAST

Passes Given for Tickets Sold

Production is now well in progress for Keith Winter's "The Shining Hour," the first major presentation to be given by the Players' Club this season.

Performances will be held on the 9-10-11 of December and tickets have already been distributed to members of the Club while the Box Office will open on Monday December 6.

A free pass will be given for every seven tickets sold and there is no limit to the number of passes received by each student. Tickets for this purpose can be obtained now from Kerr Stevenson and Peter Charlton.

"The Shining Hour" was first produced in Toronto three years ago by Raymond Massey, who also took the lead. This role, that of David Linden, will be taken in the Players' Club production by Stephen Macnutt.

Mariella Linden, the part played by Gladys Cooper in her Canadian Premiere, will be enacted by Julia Hackett. Dorothy Bennett, "Nan Masters" of last year's production "Fly Away Home," will take the part of Judy Linden, David's wife.

The role of Henry Linden, David's brother, will be taken by Rupert Muller, who has had previous experience in Players' Club productions, while the part of the other brother Mickey Linden will be enacted by Bill Clarke.

Barbara Whiteley, who displayed her talent for monologue in last year's Revue, will take the part of Hannah, another Linden relative.

DELEGATION GETS SENDOFF AT ENTHUSIASTIC HUSTINGS; CENSORS MAKE NO PROMISES

MEET ON ARTS STEPS

Glyn Owen Explains Purpose of Petition

RIOTOUS SKIT GIVEN

Piper Padlocked Pending Police Probe

IN the traditional barker style, Glyn Owen and Ted Piper assembled a large crowd of students to participate in the hustings on the steps of the Arts Building at one o'clock yesterday. The subject concerned was the presentation of a protest against the banning of the film "Emile Zola" to the Quebec Board of Censors.

Glyn Owen described briefly how the protest had come into being at a recent meeting of the Social Problems Club, when it was decided that there was absolutely no reason why the film should not be shown in Montreal.

"Now that Look, Pic, and Coronet have been banned, where will we find suitable pictures for our bedroom walls?" asked Ted Piper dramatically. Several suggestions were offered, the most appropriate being that of Esquire. Piper declared that there was no obscenity or other objectionable material in "The Life of Emile Zola."

SKIT PRODUCED.

While Piper was talking, a gentleman in a top-hat and brown overcoat took a keen interest in the proceedings. He turned out to be a French politician; and the skit that followed was based on the reception that a group of students from another university received from a certain honourable member of the city administration, when they arrived to protest the holding of a supposedly Communist meeting.

The great man told the students that he could do nothing for them under the circumstances, but that if they chose to start a riot... A lively scuffle ensued, but it did not please him. "I am a beg man," he insisted, "I must have a beg riot." He ended by padlocking Piper on the charges of drunkenness, disorderly conduct, sedition, blasphemy, inciting to riot, and last but not least, "committing Communism."

The part of the politician was ably handled by Reuben Ship, with Hugh Farrell as the leader of the student delegation.

Architects Hold Trip To Hampstead Church

On Wednesday, the 24th of November, the students of the First and Second years of the School of Architecture spent the morning in Hampstead inspecting the new Anglican Church of Saint Matthew, accompanied by Professor Philip J. Turner, Professor of Building Construction.

Mr. A. Campbell Wood, of the firm of Hutchison and Wood, architects, met the students and conducted the tour of inspection giving a full description of the construction and architectural details.

The church is situated on Dufferin Road near Cote Saint Luc Road and for the past few years the services have been conducted in the basement storey. The completed building is a brick adaption of the Gothic style, with the interior finish of artificial stone, plaster and Ten Test. It has seating accommodation for 666 persons, exclusive of 36 in the choir and a side chapel, for early morning services, seating 64 persons.

Recreation facilities are provided, as well as full facilities for the choir and clergy.

COMMERCIAL STUDENTS MEETING.

Babkin Speaks On Hearing In Dogs

An unusual address will be presented before the Conservatorium of Music today at four o'clock when Dr. Boris B. Babkin will speak on "Auditory Capacity in Dogs."

Dr. Babkin, of the Department of Physiology, is keenly interested in music, specializing in Russian types, and even playing the balalaika himself. However, having carried out a great many experiments on the sound sensitivity of dogs and cats, he has chosen to describe some of his investigations, and to illustrate his address with blackboard drawings.

Dr. Babkin will describe the analytical capacity of the brain of the dog, and the mechanism by which the animal distinguishes between sounds and sound combinations. The executive feel that this topic should prove of interest to an audience of musicians as canine and human brains react in a similar fashion.

COMMISSION TALKS ON FOREIGN POLICY

Saturday Sees Assembly of Local College Students

Implications of Japanese Conflict and Effects on Canada to Be Debated

"CANADIAN Foreign Policy"

will be the subject under discussion on Saturday, November 27, at 2:00 p.m., when a special study commission will meet in Strathcona Hall. This group is the result of the commission which met last week during the Local Conference of Montreal university students. As a result, it includes students from McGill, Université de Montreal, and Sir George Williams College.

At its initial meeting the commission studied the particular economic influence present in recent years which have tended to shape and develop Canadian foreign policy. On this Saturday afternoon the group will continue with the same subject, paying particular attention to the Japanese conflict in China, and the implications it holds out for Canada. Each member has been assigned a certain amount of "research" work in finding facts and figures which will be necessary to reach accurate conclusions. All persons who are interested in taking part in this commission may attend, on Saturday afternoon, and particularly those who were present at the initial meeting. It is expected that the group will meet every week until the Christmas holidays.

The following are those already participating in the Commission: D. Albert, H. L'Esperance, A. Ross, G. Lathe, E. LeMaistre, C. Memurtry, N. Grissin, R. Oliver and K. Markell.

REFUSES COMMENT.

Asked if the prominence given Zola's name in the banned film was the reason for its prohibition, Mr. Beaulac declined to make any further comment.

The reporters from down-town newspapers remained with Mr. Beaulac after the committee left.

War Is Beautiful

"WE arrived upon them unobserved and immediately dropped our load of explosives. I remember that one group of horsemen gave me the impression of a budding rose as the bombs fell in their midst. It was exceptionally good fun and they were easy to hit as we were not too high up. They offered a perfect target". This statement, despite its remarkable similarity, is not that of a three-year-old gleefully describing the maneuvers of toy soldiers. It is the aesthetic appreciation of Vittorio Mussolini of the joys of killing human beings in Ethiopia. Il Duce's off-spring terms war "the quintessence of beauty". The book which gives expression to these noble Caesarian sentiments is prefaced with a statement that its intention is "to have Italian youth learn from a young man what it feels like to be fighting a war when only 20 years of age and to be above war's sorrow, appreciating only its beauties".

Mussolini, pere, may well be proud of his hideous son who has so well absorbed the Fascist ideology. His exposition is admirable and sure to evoke the favourable criticism of Il Duce. People of artistic appreciation will relish the account of the bombing of Adai-Ado, which was "swell and had a tragic but beautiful effect".

This book should have a wide circulation among sadists, perverts, madmen, and people who can savour the beauty of killing for its own sake. This ennobling opus is fully representative of Fascism. It is better anti-Fascist propaganda than any 'decadent' democratic thinker could ever manufacture.

Propaganda Education

ONE of the phenomena of our times is the increasing importance of propaganda as a social force. With the vast increase in the circulation of newspapers in the last two decades and the rise of radio within the memory of all students the demagogue is able to reach an audience greater than ever before.

We who live in democratic countries are apt to forget the potency of propaganda, but we are rudely awakened when we contemplate the European complex. Germany's Nazis are astute enough to have a special Ministry of Propaganda in their Government and Italy's and Russia's dictators also depend mainly on the power of propaganda to keep them in power.

In the face of these conditions it is of interest to analyze the position of the student in the European scheme of things. Incredible though it seems, it is the supposedly intelligent student who has in the majority of cases been responsible for introducing and maintaining an authoritarian government in those countries which have them, and it is the student body which has been responsible for Fascist riots in democratic countries.

Comparing the position of the Canadian student with this discouraging picture in Europe we can find certain encouraging indications, but they are hardly sufficient. Some students interested in social problems have seen fit to attempt to combat propaganda by counter-propaganda, others interested in sociology study its effects objectively. Nevertheless, there is little indication at McGill of a student movement to study the methods of propaganda and the means of detecting it in our everyday reading.

This study and exposure of propaganda wherever it is found should certainly be the function of the student if anyone, for it is the student of today who becomes the voter of tomorrow and the leader of public opinion.

In view of this we view with hearty approval the establishment of An Institute for Propaganda Analysis in New York City. Originating with a group of professors at Columbia University this institution analyses current propaganda in the journals of the day, and publishes a monthly letter of its findings. The institution is non-political and holds no bias whatever. It recognizes that certain propaganda is of value while other propaganda is detrimental to the interests of the people at large, nevertheless it confines itself to exposing the methods of the propagandist at work.

The establishment of a similar institute in Canadian universities would be a step forward for Canadian students in the eyes of the public, and would certainly be a service to the Canadian People.

Military Matters

BOOK WEEK IN THE ARMY.

WITH the Montreal Book Week coming to a close, it is well to pause for a moment and consider the Military books in the Redpath Library.

There is an immense amount of material on most of the great Generals, including the despatches, biographies and studies of their campaigns. There are Regimental Histories and an excellent history of the British Army, by the Hon. J. W. Fortescue, which give an opportunity to study tradition, that tradition which has developed the spirit and greatness of the British Army today.

The study of the life of a British General or of the history of the British Army would not only make a most interesting hobby for the present session but would help to form that character of leadership based on knowledge which an aspiring leader needs.

The Great War (listed in the Library as the European War) is excellently cared for. In fact, there are so many books on this subject that the novice is at a loss to find where to begin. There are books on the Aerial warfare, on the battlefields, on the naval schemes, on the points of view of the leading countries concerned, on the causes, on destruction, on the food produce, on the legal aspects, on the literature, on the medical and sanitary organization, on the military life, on moral and religious aspects, on munitions, on prisoners, on prizes, on propaganda, on the psychological effects, on reconstruction, on re-education of the returned soldiers, on relief work, on reparations, on settlement, on social work, on spies, on submarines, on transport and on the women's work. Finally, there are biographies, personal narratives, fiction, drama, poetry, photographs, and wit and humour.

To start off, one could not go wrong in studying one of Liddell Hart's books. To quote from Lord Tweedsmuir: "Liddell Hart is not only a historian of campaigns but a philosopher who understands the root principles of human conflicts. No one has read so courageously and acutely the lessons of the Great War."

Then there are other books, such as the Official Histories, the Times Histories, short histories by such authors as Col. Repington.

Now, perhaps, one is ready to consult the bibliographies and branch off into the particular branch in which one is interested.

McGill students should be proud that they have the opportunity of using this collection, doubtless one of the finest collection of military books in the Dominion.

NOTES ON THE C.O.T.C.

It was announced on Tuesday evening that the enlistment mark of last year had been passed, one hundred and five being on the rolls. Both certificate classes are also larger. This is especially commendable as there has been complete reorganization this year, confining enrolment to McGill students.

Last Thursday the Certificate 'B' (Captain) Candidates continued their training with a sand-table scheme illustrating the use of the defensive position. On Tuesday evening another sand-table scheme was given to them on "Protection at Rest and on the Move". During the remarks of the instructor on mechanisation of the army, one young subaltern asked what had happened to the army mules. The reply was that perhaps they had been given commissions. Last evening the 'B' Candidates joined the 'A' Candidates for a lecture on "Map Reading".

The Certificate 'A' (Lieutenant) Candidates had their first Thursday evening lecture last week, on "Map Reading". On Tuesday evening they had lectures on "Infantry Organization" and on "Platoon Weapons". Last evening they continued their "Map Reading" class.

Recruits paraded at the Armoury of the Canadian Grenadier Guards on Tuesday evening, for further training in squad drill.

By DIAL TWISTER

WHEN Alice Faye took sick for eight weeks her latest picture was held up. Fred Allen, who plays with Miss Faye in the film, refused to accept the $80,000.00 due him as salary for these eight weeks. "I didn't work for the money," said the popular radio comedian, "so I can't accept it. I'm sure Hollywood will think me crazy, but I think it is, so that makes us even!"

When Tommy Riggs wanted to have Betty Lou Barry, his brainchild, insured, the companies would not accept her as a risk on the ground that she was a "state of mind", and consequently not eligible for insurance. It seems to us that any "state of mind" which can enjoy so much popularity with Rudy Vallee doesn't need any insurance.

It seems that the poor listeners to the radio programs are at last coming into their own. The radio stars are beginning to see the importance of an audience to such an extent that quite a few of them are going in for a new type of hobby—collecting the autographs of visitors to the program! Is it possible that the species radio fan is becoming as extinct as the mythical pedestrian?

VARIETOS

FASCISM IN QUEBEC?

REPERCUSSIONS of the recent cancellation of meetings in Montreal because of threats of violence by our sister University are seen in an editorial in the University of Alberta student paper. Commenting on the incident, the writer says, "The important point in all this is not the aims and principles of the Communist party. Neither is it the fact that the Mayor of Montreal was weak-kneed enough to refuse a lawfully-organized association permission to hold a meeting simply because a delegation of students called at his office and demanded that he refuse. The point is that the group of students who were evidently opposed to Communism should have taken the methods they did to stop the meeting."

"The methods used in Montreal have already been used in Berlin and Rome with considerable success in stifling democracy. Fascism, Nazism, and Communism... are a state of mind... which refuses to listen to the other when it disagrees with him. When this state of mind appears in a large group of university students, it is time that we stopped to examine the educational system which made such a performance possible."

Are our Universities teaching the method of tolerance, or are they closing and narrowing the minds of students? That is the question to be answered.

"THE LIFE OF EMILE ZOLA"

COMMENT in the student publication of Laval University regarding the banning of the above film admits that there is nothing in the film itself which merits its banishment. The name of Zola is the only reason which one can offer as an explanation of the action of the censors. But, states the "L'Hebdo" further, if the provincial censors believed that the showing of this film would incite the moviegoers to buy Zola's books, then that is sufficient reason to interfere. That, we think, is a reason for the ban, but what a reason!

ENGINEERS HEAR FATHER BEAUDIN

"A Problem of Empire: India" was the theme of an address given at the Engineering Institute of Canada, last evening, by Rev. FR. J. C. Beaudin, Ph.D. Father Beaudin cited the numerous problems which confront England in India. Military, social, educational, and religious difficulties converge into one great problem, that of religion. The solution to all of them is a matter of vital importance, and extremely difficult in a land that is so diversified in geographical aspect and so densely populated, especially so, because of the caste system, and differences of languages.

India has a population of 350,000,000, including all races, colours, and religions. The vital interest of England in India is one of economic importance, to find an outlet for the products of a highly industrialized nation. Great Britain must spend millions to protect the Indian Empire and a naval base maintained at any cost.

The Hindus are the agents of their own hardships and there can be no hope for betterment unless extreme changes are brought about. In the shadows of temples and the palaces of immensely wealthy rajahs are the humble hovels of lowly people eeking out a bare existence.

Gandhi sees the salvation of India in a return to the ways and customs of the ancients. He does not approve of manufactures, irrigation or machinery and considers doctors, lawyers and law courts useless, yet he is a lawyer of no mean talent. Gandhiji would boycott British goods and refuse to pay taxes. More radical leaders have taken his place; they insist on immediate freedom regardless of the toll on human lives. These leaders have been inspired abetted and aided by the U.S.S.R.—a statement made by Rev. Beaudin only after a very close study and observation, based on documentary evidence obtained from such sources as the diplomatic bureau, the British army and from Soviet sources. He didn't hesitate to say that the future of England in India may be heavily handicapped and jeopardized by Russian propaganda distributed. "Russia" stated Rev. Beaudin "is England's most important enemy in Asia. Russia will soon be her competitor in all markets. Her eyes are on India as a continuation of the foreign policy of the Czars. If Japan loses the war with China, perhaps in five years your sons will be called to fight a Soviet-financed Hindu army. Russia is more Asiatic than European."

Great Britain has some seven hundred Rajahs and governors in India, descendants of Ancient Hindu Princes, with inherited titles and wealth. These princes levy taxes for their own benefit. The Hindus would go on the warpath if these conceded glorious titles were taken away, because they represent the descendants of the supermen of the glorious past. Statistics show that 95 per cent. of the population is illiterate. Only 1 per cent. of the women can read. Rev. Beaudin cited that there were 725 languages or dialects; it is impossible to find a leader able to master them all.

England must not be blamed for the illiteracy in India. The Civil Service is crowded to overflowing. Brahmins replace doctors and professional men, and the young Indians consider time spent in college as useless, and have taken a stand on the extreme left of Gandhi, and will soon be in the vanguard of the red host of Russia.

Many other problems confront England in India. There is a caste system, trial marriages, 30 million widows, 15 million of which are under fifteen years of age, along with sixty million untouchables. England doesn't dare interfere with time honoured customs. "The only solution," said Father Beaudin, "is in the Christian religion. A miracle must happen or the bloody Gods will continue to reign..."

Kerr Reappointment Recommended by Athletics Council and Board

HERE and THERE

by '38

WEEK-END FOOTBALL PREDICTIONS.

VARSITY to take Queen's and Argos to trim Ottawa by more than four points.

WORD has come down that the reappointment of Doug Kerr as football coach has been recommended to the University by the Athletics Board and the Students' Athletics Council. There seems to be no reason why this will not be ratified and we feel sure that the Campus as a whole will be glad to know that Doug will be back for another year.

DOUG, in the two years he has been coach, has made a real name for himself. Football at McGill is a real pleasure for the players in decided contrast to what it is at many other universities. We feel that Doug has done more than his share towards keeping it so.

TALKING about all-star teams which are a lot of fun even if they don't make sense, we secured ideas from half a dozen of our better players and here is the joint result: Flying wing, Kennedy (W); Halves, Gray (T); Munro (Q), and Sherk (W); Quarter, Perovine (M); Snap; Robb (M); Insides; Hornig (M), and Ewener (W);. Middles, Sprague (Q), and Anton (M); Outsides, Thornton (Q), and Box (W).

SENIOR basketball makes its debut for the season tomorrow night with the seniors meeting Y.M.C.A., and the seconds playing Sir Georges Williams College in exhibition tilts. The team are looking forward to an interesting season. Rumor has it that Western are the team to beat with several smart footballers included on their line-up.

IT is with pleasure that we note that Frank Gorman will help out Hughie Farquharson with the coaching this season by taking control of the intermediate hockey team. Frank has plenty of McGill spirit and should be able to pass it on to the team, and this we consider to be the most important qualification of a college coach in any sport.

WE insert the following clipping from the Western Gazette: "Down with 'Varsity!' Yes, we said it. Not that we have anything against the University of Toronto, in spite of the slightly patronizing attitude they adopt towards younger and more vigorous institutions. We have nothing but respect for the University of Toronto. Next to their own opinion, our opinion of them is probably the highest. "But we do object to the way they usurp the term 'Varsity'—as if they were the only full-fledged university in Eastern Canada. We have every bit as much right to the term as they have, for 'varsity' is only a contraction of 'university.' So henceforth, hail Toronto and down with 'Varsity!'"

WE agree with them as regards their remarks about using the term "Varsity," although fail to see why they are worrying so much about it. We cannot agree with them about their other remarks, however, as we have the greatest respect for Toronto University.

Present Coaching System Likely To Continue Into Third Season

CANADIAN FOOTBALL COMMENT

By D. U.

SINCE the current popular pastime seems to be commenting on the Canadian-American football rules situation, I would like to air a few of my views.

I was only a "sideline quarterback" or one of the Chee-Hee, Chee-Haw boys from up in the bleachers, I would be content to let the would-be sports authorities speak their speech uncontested. But having completed my sixth season at the game, both under American and Canadian rules, I feel that I can speak with at least a pretence of knowing what I'm talking about.

WE need only to make a brief review of football history to find the most convincing argument of all in favor of American football. Harvard and McGill opened international intercollegiate football relations shortly after the middle of last century. Saying that, present-day football began gaining momentum along about then, we might say that the American and Canadian games are children of a common mother. By the turn of the century, football had gained a place for itself on the American sports calendar and the College Board of Football was organized as the governing body over the intercollegiate sport. This is composed of capable representatives from schools and conferences throughout the country. It has been the job of this group, who meet annually following each season, to modify the game of football so that it offers the keenest competition, the greatest safety and training for the participants and the most action and interest for the spectators. Each change in the American rulings have been backed by sound logic and the close of each meeting of the College Board has found the game more effective. Such football masterminds as Andy Kerr of Colgate, Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, Lou Little of Columbia, Wallace Wade of Duke and Bob Neyland of Tennessee have added their bit to the improvement of the game. I respect the type of game these men and hundreds of others have striven to develop. Who can have the colossal crust to say that the antiquated Canadian game lacks defects or even compares with the game whose life's work it has been these Americans to develop?

A McGill man, above all, should be the last one to want to cling to the unfair rules of the Intercollegiate League. Our team had a good team; it was made of the stuff good teams are made of. I know this because I was one of Doug Kerr's boys myself. The team was small and was unusual, even among Canadian teams, in that there was no athletic subsidy for the players. Each boy plays because he wants to. Only the spirit and fight that has put McGill at the top of the "yards gained" column could come from a team like this. Yet we foot the list. The team that outplays the other in the States comes out on top in at least 90 per cent. of the

UNANIMOUSLY PASSED

Graduates Not to Play on University Teams

RUMOURS DISPELLED

Kerr System Has Developed Great Enthusiasm During Past Season

By PETE FULLER.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made last night by the Athletics Board, that the reappointment of Doug Kerr as head football coach has been recommended to the University for their approval, by the Athletics Board and the Students' Athletics Council. The other important statement made public was that the present policy (that only those attending the university as students are eligible to play on university athletic teams) would be continued. This resolution was unanimously adopted by both the Students' Athletics Council and the Board.

Providing the University approves, Doug will start his third season with the Red footballers. He has been largely responsible for the remarkable team spirit that has been in evidence during the past season. Regardless of their standing in the league the team is respected, second to none, and their sportsmanship and fight is the talk of the intercollegiate league.

Before coming to McGill, Doug coached many a Westward team to the intermediate Dominion titles. His coaching methods, through his aides, have made the Intermediate and Frosh teams much stronger than they were in the past, the Frosh team winning the title two years ago and again this year. Up till a few years ago the Seconds were just so much "filler" in the City League but this year they were real threats for the title.

The other statement should settle the rumours that have been going the rounds that graduates will see action on certain McGill teams. Both the Students' Athletics Council and the Athletics Board were practically unanimous in their desire to uphold the present policy.

Intermediates Meet Sir George Williams College in Other Game; Teams Appear to Be in Fine Shape

The McGill Senior and Intermediate Basketball teams swing into action tomorrow night at the Montreal High gymnasium, the seniors playing Y.M.C.A., and the Intermediates taking on Sir George Williams College. Both McGill teams have been practicing enthusiastically for the past two weeks, stressing fast combination. Coach Van Wagner has spent about half an hour each day on fast accurate passing and sure-shooting—his policy being to baffle the opposition in this way before sinking the ball from an advantageous position. Last year's representatives, who will carry the brunt of the attack, are Captain Rutherford, Neville Wykes, John Shipley and Frank Giannasio. This foursome will be relieved by such stars of last year's Intermediates as Sam Mislav, Kalfas and Storrs, and newcomers Holgate and Cameron.

The Seniors have withdrawn this year from the city league and will concentrate on winning the Intercollegiate race which was won last year by Toronto Varsity. Several exhibition games, which have been arranged, should round them into shape for their first major encounter against last year's champs on January 28.

The Intermediates, who oppose Sir George Williams College, also show promise of going places. They are drilled on the same system as the seniors and with more practice, some of them will be great assets to future first string entries. This team is again entered in the intermediate A division of the city league and are hoping to come out on top, one position higher than they managed last year.

The following will compose the teams to go into action tomorrow night:—

Seniors: Rutherford, Shipley, Wykes, Giannasio, Storrs, Sandburg, Holgate, Kingston, Mislav, Kalfas, Cameron and Keyes.

Intermediates: Reynolds, Orr, Kobernick, Russel, Burube, Drysdale, Ferguson, Lamb, Ward, Koneb, Whitehead.

STUDENT COUNCIL MAKES HISTORY

NINTH COUNCIL.

Mr. Hay was president of this council and about the only familiar name in the records of this council is that of Miss D. Newton (Dr. Dorothy Newton Swales).

It is interesting that at the Christmas dance of that year the girls each brought "a small cake" and the boys paid for the "music, coffee, sugar and milk." It is a far cry from this method of providing refreshment to our present hundred-dollar suppers.

TENTH COUNCIL.

It appears that the existing constitutions had been lost and so it fell upon Mr. Hodgins to get new ones put into effect. Mr. Hodgins, who, since his year of excellent service as secretary of the council, had been serving in the Imperial Air Force, accomplished the task which fell upon him with thoroughness and capability. He may well be called the father of student government as we know it.

MACDONALD DELEGATES ATTEND CONFERENCE

Three Students Travel to St. Lawrence University

Last week the International Relations Club held their Mid-Atlantic Conference at St. Lawrence University, N.Y. Attending were delegates from Canadian universities, McGill, Queen's, McMaster, Macdonald, and Upper Canada. Syracuse, N.Y.U., Dartmouth, Georgetown and Allegheny had, among other American universities, their representatives present.

Miss Joan Caverly, Mr. Dunn and Mr. Griffin, the Macdonald delegates, left last Friday morning, lunched at Cornwall and arrived the same afternoon at St. Lawrence University at Compton, N.Y.

A round-table conference occupied the afternoon and took the form of a discussion on international affairs. After an enjoyable dinner Friday night, propaganda films were shown. It was pointed out by means of these films that propaganda may take the form of advertising in either a certain industry of government in a way other than that generally accepted.

Round tables occupied most of Saturday with the election of the executive in the afternoon. Professor Scott of McGill was the guest speaker at a banquet held in the evening. Topping an interesting and instructive two days was a dance following the banquet. The delegation motored home Sunday morning.

St. Lawrence is a small co-educational college of some seven hundred students. Mostly residential, the University is fortunate in possessing several nice fraternity houses and is, on the whole, exceptionally well equipped. The usually informal American hospitality was extended to all the visitors and the students of Macdonald spent a very pleasant week-end.

The McGill Daily was represented at an early meeting by Mr. Smith, the editor-in-chief, and Mr. Mills. Their offer was "that the Daily should be delivered each morning by 10.30, that three columns should be set aside for Macdonald news, and that the cost should be $1 instead of $1.50." Further discussion took place. Mr. Hodgins pointed out the unfortunate occurrence of an article in the Daily which cast slurs upon Macdonald. Mr. Smith replied that the article was written by unrepresentative freshmen and did not represent the feelings of the student body as a whole. It was finally decided in the face of considerable opposition that the scheme should be tried out for one week. The Daily continued to come to our campus and the arrangement was renewed at the end of the year with a rise in price to $1.50. It is also noteworthy that a system for obtaining reservations for the football games in the city was then in vogue.

The Men's Smoker was originated in this same year. The methods used to enforce rules were rather drastic. We quote: "It was unanimously decided that anyone guilty of misconduct while ladies were present at games in the Men's Residence would be severely dealt with by the men's student body as a whole." Oh! Oh! Mr. Hodgins complained also that "a boy took a girl's arm on the way home from church" and "Dean Laird objected to this practice."

The members of the Junior Faculty were invited to subscribe to dances at the same rate as students." The dance in question cost $3.75. Mr. Jull was the Faculty representative.

There was in these days a Y.M.C.A. at Macdonald which seemed to have the chronic habit of running up debts by the sending of delegates to distant conferences. These debts were usually paid by the Athletic.

"A warning was given about the danger of going downtown with girls after 6 p.m. in contravention of the rules of the college. The conduct of Mr. Watson in throwing bottles and breaking bulbs in the corridors, after promising the House Committee to act in an orderly manner, was discussed." It was left to Watson's class to administer whatever punishment they saw fit.

The last motion of the year was one of thanks to Mr. Hodgins for his "excellent and untiring service." "When the applause had subsided the meeting was adjourned."

CLASSICAL MUSIC AT OUT- STANDING PIANO RECITAL

Students Entertained by Miss Eleanor Bradford's
Excellent Concert

Wednesday evening Macdonald Students were privileged to listen to an outstanding piano recital rendered by one of Canada's leading pianists. Miss Eleanor Bradford of Ottawa opened her program in the usual manner with the rendering of the King, followed by a Rhapsody of Brahms, which she executed in the most accomplished manner. Her skill and grace of playing alone, were well worth the attendance of the recital. This coupled with her expression, as though she were pouring her very soul into her music, left little to be desired.

Among the other well known pieces of the recital were, an Organ Fugue by Bach, Clair de Lune by Debussy, and Chopin's Prelude. Miss Bradford rounded out her evening by playing Moskowski's Transcription of Carmen. Her program was well balanced, ranging from the heavy moods of Bach to the lighter ones of Brahms and Liszt.

The audience would have enjoyed the opportunity of listening to more encores, but unfortunately time would not permit. It is very evident that classical music is now only appreciated by the minority; however, had more students realized the rare occasion at hand, no doubt the attendance would have been greater. Nothing but praise has been forthcoming from those who were fortunate to find the time to put in an appearance, and

SECTION "A."

"Le Cercle Francais" of Section "A" of the Teachers was organized on Wednesday the 13th October, and the following officers were elected:

President.....Lucille Lefebvre
Vice-president.....Ruby Gilmore
Sec.-treas.....Phyllis Craig
The first organized meeting took place on Wednesday, the 10th of November, at which Miss Enid Jeffrey presided as Master of Ceremonies.

The president opened the meeting with a few words telling of her plans for the year, and of thanks for the honour bestowed upon her, as president.

The program, which Miss Jeffrey presented had Armistice as its theme, and this was carried out in the form of two addresses, one on the Armistice in France, and the other on the Armistice in Canada. A poem, "Le Soldat Inconnu," was also given. These numbers were preceded and followed by songs and games. The meeting closed with the singing of "O Canada."

This is but the first of many meetings which will take place during the course of the year, and if each meeting proves as interesting and entertaining as the first, it is felt sure that "Le Cercle Francais" will be a great success.

SECTION "B."

The executive appointed by Section B of the Teachers is as follows: President.....Ben Middleidge
Vice-President.....Nancy Valpy
Secretary.....Edna Shea
Treasurer.....Scott Kneeland

A master of ceremonies is elected at each meeting to prepare the programme for the following meeting, and Mr. MacDuff, as first "Chef de Ceremonies," provided an entertaining programme. Several folk songs were sung and a few games were played. A mystery story was told, the mystery being solved by questioning the narrator who could reply only "oui" or "non."

The president occupied the chair and in his remarks emphasized the aims of the circle and the duty of every member to take some part in the programme.

The members of the circle attended a French film in the local theatre, in aid of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

The aims of "Le Cercle Francais" are to promote a greater fluency in the language among its members and to cultivate an interest in the charm of the French language, of the folk songs, poetry, and literature, which cannot be found in manuals and grammar texts. If these aims are realized by its members, the French Circle will prove to have been a most successful organization.

Christmas Eve, should give the canvassers an opportunity to call upon more prospective subscribers and thus swell the fund. The fund is at present arranging a theatre party to view the "March of Time," a film descriptive of the horrible privations of the non-combatant Chinese civilians, which is now being shown at the Palace Theatre.

Contributions are being received at the Campaign headquarters, 227 Dorchester St. west, and will be promptly acknowledged.

name for himself at 175, or light-heavy class. Another product of the west, George Muttibury looks good at that weight. George is from Victoria, B.C. George Degnan, heavyweight, has been seen out occasionally, too. It is hoped that he will be in a position to fill in that position at the Assault this spring. Get it? John Colby and Tommy Watson, former members of the team have both been out to recent workouts. Tommy was college champ at 125, two years ago, while Colby held that position last year. The latter is expected to compete for the 135-lb. spot this term, as he had difficulty in making the lower weight.

That's all folks.

PACED by the deadly shooting of their ace marksman, "Flash" Markell, Presbyterian College began the defence of their Intercollegiate basketball crown last evening by defeating the Anglican basketballers 37-27 on the Montreal High floor. Markell accounted for over half of his team's total score as he rang up no less than 19 points. Partridge and Scott, Presbyterian guards, also turned in stellar games, while Chaloner and White turned in valuable performances for the losers.

LINEUPS.

The lineups were as follows:

CAN. FOOTBALL COMMENT

cases. No one kicker can make the determined efforts of twelve fighting players just so much futility. And we all remember one rainy afternoon when a ten-man line swept in on Cammie McArthur to block a kick in the closing seconds of play to turn a sure win into a loss. The intermediates lost a similar one to Westmount under identical circumstances. A ten-man line may be strategy in Canada, but it is an absurdity in American football. If you do not quite understand why, ask Captain Hornig or his teammates Arden Hedge or Lou Ruschin. They have played under both rulings and will gladly back up what I have to say.

A LOT of petty talk has appeared this week in the Daily about injuries in the American game and about changing the touch line rules, but as far as I can see it is just a waste of printer's ink. One commentator contends that the introduction of interference would add more injuries to this so-called "safe" Canadian game. Would you say right offhand that a pair of 4" by 4" wooden goalposts sitting squarely in the playing zone made for safety?

IN closing I wish to compliment the unknown author of Wednesday's column on his fiery climax to a very unconvincing article. His suggestion that Americans stop molesting Canadian rules and to return to the States when they want football the way they like it seems more like a regression to the infantile than a fitting close to any article. What would be a pity would be for the Americans to leave carrying away with them the ideas submitted and adopted to date, such as: the forward pass, the sharply-pointed ball, modern player's equipment from head to foot and electrically lighted fields. And his closing point was that Canadian ball is individualistic. Well, I say, so is "halitosis."

BIOLOGISTS MEET WITH PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY

"The coming combined meeting of the Biological and Philosophical Societies at 8:15 Tuesday night in Strathcona Hall should prove to be of exceptional interest to the large number of students of these subjects," stated a member of the executive of the Biological Society. Since there is a certain overlapping of the two sciences, the title of the subject under discussion, "Philosophy in Biology" should produce some lively discussion and lead to valuable exchange of ideas.

Mark Frank, vice-president of the Biological Society, and Charles Lipton, vice-president of the Philosophical Society will present papers. Their purpose is to acquaint students in Biology with the conflicting theories of Vitalism and Mechanism, which attempt to explain certain biological facts in two very different lights.

T. Z. KOO TO SPEAK ON CHINESE PLIGHT

Collection to Go to Relief
Fund for Chinese
Students

Tomorrow Montrealeers will have an opportunity to hear about the plight of the Chinese people from a man who is very closely in touch with these events, and who is personally affected by this tragedy—Dr. T. Z. Koo, who speaks tomorrow night at eight-fifteen in Emmanuel Church on Drummond St., under the sponsorship of the Student Christian Movement.

For many years now Dr. Koo has taken a prominent part in Chinese affairs. At present he is an officer of the World's Student Christian Federation, and has been devoting himself to visiting student centres in all parts of the world. His regular work has been interrupted by the Japanese invasion of China, and he leaves very shortly for his homeland to search for his wife and children from whom he has not heard for months.

Dr. Koo is a gifted speaker, fluent in English, with unusual clarity of thought and expression. He is also an amateur musician, and has consented to render some old Chinese folk songs on his bamboo flute.
